DEPARTMENT COMMENTS: The 2016 East Austin Historic Resource Survey recommends the building as eligible for designation as a local landmark under the criteria for architecture and historical associations, contributing to a potential local historic district, and individually eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. The survey notes that it is significant as an exemplar of Austin's residential development at the start of the twentieth century, though the property does not appear to be associated with particular individuals, and that the house's cumulative occupancy history is a good example of the overall settlement patterns of the district.

BASIS FOR RECOMMENDATION:

§ 25-2-352(3)(c)(i) Architecture. The property embodies the distinguishing characteristics of a recognized architectural style, type, or method of construction; exemplifies technological innovation in design or construction; displays high artistic value in representing ethnic or folk art, architecture, or construction; represents a rare example of an architectural style in the city; serves as an outstanding example of the work of an architect, builder, or artisan who significantly contributed to the development of the city, state, or nation; possesses cultural, historical, or architectural value as a particularly fine or unique example of a utilitarian or vernacular structure; or represents an architectural curiosity or one-of-a-kind building.

The 2016 East Austin Historic Resource Survey identifies the property as a good example of the National Folk style. The 1985 Willow-Spence National Register Historic District nomination describes the property as a one- and one-half story wood-frame house with a hipped roof.¹ An inset porch supported by Classical wooden columns stretches across the eastern three-fifths of the front façade, surrounded by squared wooden balusters. The Historic Resources of East Austin National Register nomination describes the building as an exemplar of the pyramidal cottage style.²

§ 25-2-352(3)(c)(ii) Historical Associations. The property has long-standing significant associations with persons, groups, institutions, businesses, or events of historical importance that contributed significantly to the history of the city, state, or nation or represents a significant portrayal of the cultural practices or the way of life of a definable group of people in a historic time.

The building is a good example of the overarching demographic themes of twentieth-century Willow-Spence.³ The house, originally addressed as 810 Spence Street, was built in 1915 by Alfred and Caroline Johnson. Alfred Johnson worked as an engineer at the Southland Ice Company. The Johnsons lived in the home for twenty years before it became a rental property. Martha Ann “Mattie” Speir purchased the house after the death of her husband, Nace Emory, in 1943. She took in renters for extra income and lived in the home until her death in 1957.

Bastrop natives Bernardino Casarez Romo and Santos Selvera Romo purchased the house in 1957. Married in 1945, the Romo family had 8 children; Bernardino Romo served on the Palm School PTA board. Romo worked as an upholsterer when the family moved into 900 Spence Street around 1959, a career he maintained throughout the 1950s and ‘60s. The Romos retained ownership together until Bernardino Romo’s death at age 97 in 2017, and Santos Romo kept the house until her death in 2021.

The East Austin Historic Resource Survey identifies the building’s occupancy history as a significant look into the development and demographic changes that formed the predominant residential development patterns of the Willow-Spence neighborhood during the twentieth century. The first occupants, the Johnsons, were a middle-class Anglo family who owned and built the home. Its next occupant, Martha Speir, was able to purchase the house after her husband’s death with the assistance of a boarder’s rent. As more Mexican American families moved into the area at midcentury, the Romos made 900 Spence Street a home in which to raise their children. According to the East Austin Historic Resource Survey, “The community south of East 7th Street became increasingly Hispanic...likely due to the decrease in residential property values associated with the fear of industrial development nearby—although the abandonment of Zavala School, the Pan American Recreation Center, and the Metz School never came to pass.”⁴ Notably, the Romos went from renting their home to owning it outright.

Though the property does not appear to be associated with particular significant individuals, the house’s cumulative occupancy history is a good example of the overall settlement patterns of the district. The East Austin Historic Resource survey notes that it is significant as an exemplar of Austin’s residential development at the start of the twentieth century.⁵
